

HEAVY RAINS HINDER STRIKE

Conditions In Chicago Much Improved This Morning--Strikers Discouraged.

SHERIFF BARRETT IS IN CHARGE

More Police And Deputy Sheriffs Are Now On The Streets--Tension Seems To Be Decidedly Lessened Just Now.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Chicago, May 6.—The heavy rain this morning apparently put a damper on the spirit of the strikers and kept the crowds moving, temporarily at least, and gave Chicago a cessation of the violent scenes of the past week.

Realize Situation
Everything indicates the striking teamsters realize the employers are well situated with the unusual police protection afforded them by extra police men and deputy sheriffs and that they have good prospects of bringing the hauling business back to something like normal conditions with the aid of imported strike-breakers.

Meet Tomorrow
The Federation of Labor meeting Sunday afternoon is expected to carefully canvass the probabilities of making concessions that will end the trouble. Meantime a new move to bring about arbitration will probably be started today by the union leaders, although the exact form it will take is unknown.

More Deputies
Both police department and sheriff's office were in additional men this morning, although Sheriff Barrett declares he has the situation well in hand. There is no likelihood of troops being needed. Three men said to be strikers were arrested early this morning for an attack on a United States express wagon.

Swear in Employees
The Employers' association has decided that thousands of trusted employees of the boycotted department stores and wholesale houses be sworn in as deputy sheriffs and be placed on the wagons to act as escorts to the drivers. The Employers' association this morning reports having 4900 wagons in service, which will be increased Monday to 6,000.

Opens Employment Bureau.
The Employers' association announced the opening of an employment bureau and advertised for 1,000 able-bodied teamsters, "free American citizens," to fill permanent positions. This move is in line with the resolution to disregard the union in the future, as such teamsters who apply will be hired individually, with no reference to union contracts or the principle of the closed shops.

The employers also determined not to "import" any more negroes, but they have declared that otherwise they will not discriminate over the color of their employees.

Endeavor to Secure Arbitration.
What the new move for arbitration will develop even the most sanguine observer hesitates to predict. The only agency working along this line is the committee of the Team Owners' association which brought about the "mutual exchange of terms between the union and the employers' Wednesday night.

Secretary Cavanagh, J. M. Taft, and Jonathan Jackson, although unsuccessful in that attempt, have not ceased their efforts to bring about an amicable settlement. Since Wednesday night they have been doing some ardent missionary work individually with employers and likewise with the union leaders.

The union leaders are said to have assured the three team owners they would yield a point in the matter of demanding the discharge of all the nonunion men who have been hired to take the strikers' places. What the committee hopes to achieve is some kind of a general meeting in which the employers and the union leaders can "remove a few misunderstandings," as one of the committee put it.

Employers Issue Statement.
A detailed statement was issued by the executive committee of the Employers' association. It outlines the merchants' position as follows:

"We knew that such a principle is un-American. Sluggishness and illies are what we feared, and we looked to the police to protect us. When we found this protection inefficient and inadequate we went to Springfield and held a conference with Gov. Deneen. We did not ask him for troops but asked him if he would send them in an emergency and when applied to through legal channels.

"He said he would do so promptly. We then looked for the legal channel and we are happy to say we found it in Sheriff Barrett.

"Mr. Barrett is doing his duty like a Napoleon, and we would not be surprised to find that he will be able to put down violence and arrest the offenders. We do know that if he finds he cannot do so he will not be afraid, but will regard it as his duty to say so. Having said so, his application to Gov. Deneen for troops will follow and the troops will be sent."

Mayor Is Interviewed.
Mayor Duane said he thought the strike situation was much improved, and asserted that in his opinion all troubles would disappear within a few days. He was confident there would be no troops in Chicago.

"It is a long time since we have had any troops in this city, and we should not have them here until we need them," he said.

UNFAITHFUL WIFE CAUSES A DOUBLE SUICIDE TODAY

Illinois Couple Agree To Commit Suicide Rather Than Face a Life Of Shame.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Springfield, Ill., May 6.—The mistake of a young girl, a bride of four months, and his discovery by her husband, who chose death in preference to separation which he believed inevitable and necessary because of his wife's wrong, caused Oscar Sims and his girl wife to enter into a suicide compact which they carried out Friday at their farm home near Virden, fifteen miles south of this city.

Side by side, within a few feet of the door of their home, the bodies of Sims and his wife were found by their neighbors. On a table inside the house two notes were found. In one the girl explained that she was about to die in atonement for the wrong she had done her husband, while the other, written by the husband, explained that he died because life was no longer worth living after he had found that it could not be lived with his wife.

Watches His Wife Die.
When neighbors, attracted by the report of a shotgun, reached the Sims farm, they found husband and wife lying side by side in front of their home. The girl was dead and her young husband died before he could be carried into the house.

The same shotgun killed both. The girl died first, her husband standing near and watching while she fulfilled her part of the compact. She placed the stock of the gun in a crevice, and standing so the muzzle of the weapon pointed against her left side, she pressed the trigger with a stick. The whole left side of her body was torn away by the heavy charge of shot.

After watching his wife die, Sims reloaded the gun, and setting it in the fence in the same way, only a few feet from where his wife's body lay, he stepped up to the muzzle of the gun and with the same stick used by his wife, pushed the trigger and fell with his left side mutilated as much as that of the dead girl.

Neighbors Come Too Late.

The reports of the gun brought several neighbors to the scene. They had believed the young couple was living happily as nothing to the contrary had been heard since the marriage, Dec. 28. The two notes found on the table inside the house told the story.

Sims was a prosperous young farmer, of ordinary appearance, but possessing a high moral character. His wife's beauty occasioned general admiration.

Half an hour preceding the tragedy Sims was seen by neighbors, who say that apparently he was in his usual frame of mind, and gave no indication of the tragedy that certainly must have been consuming his whole being at the moment.

RUSSIAN SLIP OUT OF VLADISTOK AND

Raid the Coast of Japan—Then the Vessels Disappear Towards That Port.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Tokio, May 6.—Four Russian torpedo-boat destroyers from Vladivostok appeared to the westward of Hokkaido, Japan, on Friday. They seized and burned a small sailing vessel, imprisoned the captain and disappeared to the northeast, evidently returning to Vladivostok. It is thought the object of the raid was to divert the attention from Rojstevsky.

STATE NOTES
Sam La Tente, an Italian, was killed by an explosion in the O'Laughlin quarry at Racine on Friday.

Adam Brown was convicted at Fond du Lac on Friday of receiving stolen goods from the Rueping tannery.

Mrs. John Bohlinger's house and barn were destroyed by fire near Woodland on Friday, the loss being $2,500.

The residence of Peter Hanson at Kenosha was partially destroyed by fire on Friday, entailing a loss of over $3,000. The insurance was $1,900.

Game Warden Hardig of Watertown on Friday arrested John Guttenrieter while in the act of fishing with a net in the Neosho river, near Woodland.

The preliminaries in the competitive drill of the state university regiment were completed Friday night. Company D, Capt. Duke, won with a score of 93, with Company B, Capt. Wray of Janesville, second, score 92 1/2-10. These two companies will drill next Friday in the finals.

Dr. A. E. Jenks, chief of the ethnological survey in the Philippines; Prof. Gray of Northwestern university; and Prof. Maurice Robinson of the University of Illinois, will lecture at the University of Wisconsin next year.

Heavily shackled and in the custody of Sheriff Gehlert and five other officers, Bill Rudolph, condemned to death for the murder of Detective Schumacher of Racine, Wis., was taken to Union, Mo., on Friday, to be hanged next Monday.

WISCONSIN ORATOR WINS FIRST PLACE

Max Loeb, Representing University Takes Highest Honors in Northern League.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Madison, Wis., May 6.—There is joy in the forensic camp of the University of Wisconsin. Max Loeb, a brilliant young debater of Hebrew parentage from Appleton, won the Northern Oratorical league contest at Northwestern university Friday night. It is the first time in a quarter of a century that the contest, which is held annually, has been won by the representative of Wisconsin. Back in the later seventies Robert M. La Follette, now governor, won first place with an oration-essay on the character of "Iago" in Shakespeare's Othello. Annually Wisconsin has sent a representative contestant in a series of competitive contests at home, but the honors have fallen elsewhere, usually to the representative of the University of Michigan. Once Wisconsin came near winning. J. P. A. Pyre, now professor of English literature in the university, was tied for first, but in checking up the markings it was found that he was a bit of a fraction behind. Mr. Loeb spoke on the theme, Ideas and Ideals, the oration being an arraignment of combinations of wealth. His brother, Joseph Loeb, represented Wisconsin in the Northern Oratorical league contest four years ago.

RELEASE PRISONER AFTER TEN YEARS

Man Sent to Prison for Life is Released by Governor Mikey of Nebraska.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Lincoln, Neb., May 6.—Governor Mikey this morning commuted the sentence of George W. Davis, colored, sentenced for life for the alleged wrecking of a Rock Island train near this city in August, 1904, in which eleven persons lost their lives in the wreck. The governor is convinced that Davis is innocent. He has already served ten years.

CHICAGO GIVEN THE RIGHT TO FIX THE PRICES OF POWER SOLD TO THE PUBLIC

Illinois Senate Refuses to Reconsider the Former Bill Killed Yesterday.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Springfield, Ill., May 6.—The senate today refused to reconsider the vote on the state gas regulation bill, which is now dead. It then passed the bill permitting Chicago to sell the excess electric light and current, and sent it to the house. This bill gives Chicago the right to fix the price of gas and electricity sold to the public for commercial purposes.

MR. BLODGETT'S NEW TESTIMONY

Janesville Miller Appears Before The Senate Committee On Railway Rates.

URGES RAILROADS BE LEFT ALONE

Tell How The Roads Help The Small Miller Compete with The Big Combines Of Millers--Strong Testimony.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Washington, D. C., May 6.—Before the senate committee on interstate commerce, Mr. Frank Blodgett of Janesville, Wis., said that he voluntarily came to inform the senate committee that he and practically all of the grain millers of Wisconsin opposed the passage of the Esch-Townsend bill, or, in fact, any legislation regarding the regulation of railroad rates, on the ground that such legislation would tend to complicate the situation and would result in a widespread disaster to the milling business of the west.

He stated that he ships his product to practically every state in the United States and that his relations, therefore, include every important railroad of the country, and that the relations between the millers of Wisconsin on the one hand and these railroads on the other were at the present time entirely satisfactory.

"When I have a grievance," said Mr. Blodgett, "we go to the head of the railroad, present our case, and if we are right, we always get what we ask for. We almost always get what we ask for anyway and we find the railroads ever ready to act with the country miller to conserve his interests." Under no circumstances would we have these conditions altered, under no circumstances would we have the power to make rates vested in the interstate commerce commission or any other bureau or government body."

Mr. Blodgett stated that when the country millers of the west applied to the railroads some years ago to give them their grain from the grain fields and thereby save them the extra cost of having to go to the terminal centers and haul their grain back to the mills, the railroads established special milling and transit rates, whereby country millers are enabled to stop their grain on its way from the grain fields to the terminal markets at a rate which is practically the same as the rate from the grain fields to the terminal.

By reason of this rate, he explained, the small miller was enabled to exist and prosper in competition with the larger millers at the market terminal. If it were not for the railroad, Mr. Blodgett said, these small manufacturers of flour would be forced out of existence and flour milling would pass into the hands of a huge trust. Mr. Blodgett, when questioned by Senator Foraker, said that inasmuch as his business was all interstate he had no interest in state rates in Wisconsin, but that he knew of no complaints on the part of the country millers in Wisconsin against the Wisconsin state rates. "We want to deal with the roads direct," Mr. Blodgett said. "We could not get justice by any other means, and if we are permitted to survive, there must be no meddling with legislation of the sort that would place the rate-making powers in any hands but those of the railroad managers, who could be reached directly and personally by the shippers whenever circumstances necessitate re-adjustment of rates. There was a time in Wisconsin when freight rates were so high as to be prejudicial to the interests of the millers, but the railroads are so quick to remedy the conditions and so willingly gave the millers protection, experience has taught us whom we must rely upon to obtain the best results in the future. We do not believe that it would be possible to obtain results from the interstate commerce commission or any other governmental body. We, therefore, stand solid against meddling with legislation."

ANN ARBOR STUDENTS HAVE WIDWAY SHOW

Members of the Faculty and Girl Students Enter Into the Spirit of the Occasion and Bedlam Reigns.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Ann Arbor, Mich., May 6.—The big "Josh county fair" given by the students of Michigan university opened Friday night in the gymnasium. When the doors opened up there was a crushing jam for admission that lasted the whole evening. Three thousand admissions were taken, at 25 cents.

The show is in the nature of a big midway with every imaginable kind of show put on by various student organizations. The attractions include a "ghost the chutes," a police court, whose court officers arrest every celebrity in sight; a mock "coochie-coochie" dance, a roulette wheel, a fake mountain saloon and gambling den, a vaudeville show and various mysterious slideshows, numbering at two-two in all. The fair is bedlam let loose, the girl students and faculty all joining in the fun.

At noon there was a unique parade, nearly a mile in length. Five hundred students took part in most grotesque exhibits. The money will go toward a student clubhouse.

PAT CROWE APPEARED TO THE OMAHA POLICE TODAY

The Famous Much-Wanted Criminal Arrives At The Scene Of His Crime And Disappears.

Omaha, May 6.—Pat Crowe, the alleged kidnaper of Eddie Cudahy, the son of the millionaire packer, walked into the office of the World-Herald at one o'clock this morning, and said he wished to surrender himself and be under the protection of the police after years of isolation from relatives and friends. Crowe was accompanied by Thomas O'Brien, a hotel proprietor. For several days there have been rumors that Crowe was in the neighborhood, but Chief of Police Donahue denied the report repeatedly. Crowe stated that he had been negotiating several years for immunity from punishment, although he declined to say with whom the negotiations were conducted. He says he is tired of living as a fugitive and wants to escape the penitentiary sentence and go into business. He refused to deny or admit he had anything to do with the kidnapping of young Cudahy. Crowe stated he fought with the Boers in South Africa and returned to the United States after the war and had been living quietly on the south side of Chicago. He visited Omaha three different times. It is now reported Crowe is in hiding in Omaha or Council Bluffs. The chief of police has the entire force hunting Crowe and says he will prosecute him if he finds him. Eddie Cudahy says he has not promised immunity and will prosecute to the full extent if he can capture him.

GROW ALFALFA IN WISCONSIN

CAN BE DONE IN ANY PART OF THE STATE.

TRIALS WERE SUCCESSFUL

State University Experiment Station Demonstrates Its Value as Forage Crop.

Madison, May 6.—A series of experiments in growing alfalfa which have been carried on at the University of Wisconsin Experiment Station during the past six years and the results of which have been published in the form of a bulletin, show that alfalfa can be successfully grown as a forage plant in practically all parts of Wisconsin, and far exceeds in nutritive value clover, timothy, and bromegrass. The experiments were conducted under the direction of the Experiment Station at the university farm and at various points throughout the state by alumni of the College of Agriculture who are members of the Wisconsin Experiment Station Association. One interesting part of these tests consisted in the inoculation of the soil with the bacteria necessary for the successful growing of alfalfa, and it has been decided to continue these inoculation tests during the coming year in various parts of the state, both with cultures furnished by the United States Department of Agriculture, and with bacteria laden soil from the university farm.

Purpose of the Tests. Since the experiments in alfalfa were begun six years ago on a quarter acre of land, various tests have been made each year and an increased acreage, until last year several acres of alfalfa were successfully raised. The general purpose of these tests has been to determine the character of the soil most favorable to its growth, the methods of preparing the soil, the advantages and disadvantages of a nurse crop, the proper amount of seed to sow per acre, the time and manner of cutting, the curing of the hay, and the effect of pasturing upon the growth of the plant.

Soil Bacteria Necessary. It has been found that unless certain bacteria are present in the soil, alfalfa like clover will not grow readily and will often sicken and die. Experiments elsewhere have developed the fact that the bacteria necessary for alfalfa are the same as those found on the roots of the common sweet clover. Observations in Wisconsin show that in those sections where sweet clover grows abundantly by the roadside practically all the plants in the adjoining fields of alfalfa develop the proper nodules.

Needs Well Drained Soil. It has been found that while clover thrives in a low rich soil, alfalfa requires a higher and drier locality. It does best on well drained soils that are underlaid with a gravelly sub-soil. For the best results with alfalfa, a piece of land should be selected that has a porous sub-soil with a gentle slope. A mellow loam with a gravelly sub-soil that will give thorough drainage is therefore best adapted for alfalfa. Seed should be sown in the spring on well-drained soil of fall ploughed land which is thoroughly prepared by disking and dragging.

Selecting and Planting Seed. During the past year tests were made with several varieties of alfalfa, but the difference between them was not found to be very marked. The American alfalfa and the Sand Lucern seemed much more vigorous than the Turkistan and took on a dark green color, while the Turkistan took on a yellowish hue and a portion of the leaves dropped. The amount of alfalfa hay procured per acre from the different varieties, did not differ widely. The American yielded 5.7, the Turkistan, 5.0, and the Sand Lucern 5.6 tons per acre from the cuttings.

The price of the several kinds of seed differs considerably, as it varies from ten to twenty cents per pound. On account of the price of the seed, and the importance of getting a uniform stand, farmers are urged to avoid the risk of sowing seeds of questionable germinating power. Good seed will give a germinating test ranging from 90 to 100 per cent, and hence no seed testing below 90 should be planted.

Cutting and Curing.

Alfalfa should be cut for hay when one-fifth in bloom. A mistake is often made by letting it stand until in full bloom. If alfalfa is cut at the proper stage and not too close to the ground, it recovers readily and can be cut a second time in thirty or forty days. Three cuttings and sometimes four can be obtained in a single season, but none should be cut later than the middle of September, as sufficient growth cannot be secured after that period to afford proper winter protection. The plants on the various plots at the university farm reached the cutting stage as early as June 6. The second cut was made on July 12, thirty-six days after the first cutting, the third cut August 12, thirty-one days after second cutting, and the fourth September 16, thirty-five days after third cutting. Hay is essential in curing alfalfa hay especially the first crop, as they protect it from rain, dew and sunshine, each of which is detrimental to alfalfa after cutting.

Has High Nutritive Value.

In order to compare alfalfa with clover, timothy, and bromegrass, plots of each were grown in close proximity to the alfalfa plot. The soil was the same as that on which alfalfa was grown, and the other conditions were approximately equal. The results of the yield and quality show that alfalfa exceeds the other three forage plants in every respect. Alfalfa is especially high in protein and fat, the feeding elements desired by live stock men, and in these respects far exceeds timothy and bromegrass, and has considerable advantage over clover, as is shown by the following table:

Alfalfa	16.4	18.7	.55	2.70
Clover	14.47	13.28	.67	1.97
Timothy	12.15	4.47	.57	1.90
Bromegrass	12.70	6.07	.52	1.82

The weight of green forage obtained per acre for alfalfa for the whole season is approximately double that of clover, three times that of timothy, and five times that of bromegrass, and the amount of hay derived from each is practically in the same proportion as the green substance.

These facts indicate that alfalfa is the ideal forage plant.

AGED COUPLE WERE FORMERLY SLAVES

Colonel and Mrs. Francis Davis of Footville, are 108 and 105 Years Old.

The former slaves of the south form a class of people now rapidly diminishing in numbers and in the north they are extremely rare persons. The two oldest residents of Footville and among the most highly respected citizens are Colonel and Mrs. Francis Davis, ex-slaves. Mr. Davis is 108 years old and was a slave till just prior to the war of the rebellion when he purchased his freedom and his wife is 105 years of age and was freed by Abraham Lincoln's emancipation proclamation.

COL. AND MRS. DAVIS, AGED 108 AND 105 YEARS RESPECTIVELY

He was born May 1, 1797, at Chesterfield, South Carolina. Three different masters at least he knows of and he can remember of being twice sold.

His Army Career. During the war he served as cook in the Union army. He was with Grant for a year and prepared food for Wisconsin soldiers three months. It was as a result of his life in the army that he came north, being directed to the southern portion of the state by Wisconsin soldiers. For several years he lived with Guy Wheeler near this city and now looks back with pleasure upon that period of his life.

Mrs. Hattie Davis. Mr. Davis' wife, Hattie, was born some time during the year 1800. She has no knowledge of the exact date of her birth but can remember that during the war of 1812 she used to collect and return washing for the United States troops, when the army was stationed at Charleston, South Carolina, and it was here that she was called twelve years of age. She, like Mr. Francis, was a slave but was not made free until the emancipation proclamation was written by the great war president.

Married in 1867. After the granting of her freedom she joined the Union troops as cook and served in that capacity to the officers of the second Wisconsin cavalry. At the close of the war Truman Kimball, James Baxter and other Janesville men were influential in bringing her to Wisconsin and it was here that she became acquainted with Francis Davis. In 1867 they were united in marriage at Broadhead and are now members of the Congregational church of that place.

Farm in Magnolia. They lived in Broadhead for a short time and then purchased a farm in the town of Magnolia. Together they worked this property until both had passed the century mark, and came to be among the greatly respected and honored residents of the county. They now reside at Footville and both are in the best of health and spirits.

Reminiscences Interesting. Both can relate many interesting experiences as slaves in the southland and no truer picture of conditions can be seen than that one visions from their descriptions, and narratives. Mr. Davis says that the greatest part of his career as a slave was pleasant but he vividly remembers of being severely whipped while working on a cotton plantation in Mississippi.

Stripped and Beaten. A guest of his master had lost a purse containing a sum of money and accusation fell upon Davis. He asserted that he was innocent of the charge but was stripped, tied to a post and beaten cruelly. He received this intermittent flogging all during one night until the following morning, his persecutors believing that he would be forced to confess the theft. His innocence was proven the next day when the lost article and contents were found by the owner, where he had placed them.

THE POWER OF STEAM. Many May See But It Takes Genius to Realize.

When James Watt saw the steam causing the kettle lid to jump up and down he said "There must be power in that steam that it can lift such a weight."

There was.

Millions prior to him had seen the same phenomenon and regarded it as an unexplained mystery.

Recent scientific research has put its finger on the "cause" of Watt's discovery. A tiny germ of life, the microbe, is the cause of the steam. A germ of life, the microbe, is the cause of the steam. A germ of life, the microbe, is the cause of the steam.

EIGHT VICTORIES IN TWELVE GAMES

Good Record Made by High School Basketball Team During Past Season.

With eight victories against four defeats and a surplus of 83 points totally over the amount scored against them by opponents during the past season the high school basketball team enjoy the honor of success. Twelve games were played, six in their own gymnasium and six on strange floors and in two-thirds of their laurels were won. The strong five of the Janesville Y. M. C. A. were bested twice out of three times, the Beloit academy team was beaten once, and the aggregations representing the Rockford, Watertown and Sun Prairie high schools were vanquished, while Waukesha high school defeated the local five in the final game of the year. Following is the record of games for the season of 1904-5:

December 10, at High school: J. H. S. 21; Y. M. C. A., 15.
January 6, at High school: J. H. S. 18; Y. M. C. A., 14.
January 14, at High school: J. H. S. 25; Milton college, 30.

A "busy store" is merely the answer to a simple problem of store management—to find the ratio between publicity and sales, and to regulate things accordingly.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The Santa Fe Railway Company has long enjoyed the reputation of furnishing the best restaurant and dining-room service of any road in the country.

Aside from the California Limited, the trains of this company west of Kansas City and through to the coast,
are not equipped with dining cars, but instead, a stop of 30 minutes is made three times a day and an old fashioned railroad eating house furnishes a meal at 75 cents, equal to the best hotel service at double the money.

The bill of fare is uniform from one of the roads to the other, and the cooking is so palatable and the service so near perfect that everybody is satisfied and compliments are frequently expressed.

The question is sometimes asked,
"How is it that the Santa Fe people are able to find so many good restaurant managers and so many intelligent attendants?"

The answer is very simple, for the company had, but little to do outside of finding one man who possessed the brain and ability to establish the service, and keep it up to a high standard of excellence.

This man was Fred J. Harvey and for years the Harvey eating houses have been a prominent and popular feature of the Santa Fe system.

Twelve years ago George Dutton,
at that time a Janesville boy, entered Mr. Harvey's employ as cashier and manager of one of his eating houses located in the sandy desert
on the western end of the line.

The railway station was the only house in sight but the half dozen trains which stopped every day for meals found the dining room bright with flowers and tropical fruit.

The lonely station in the desert was a part of the great system and the same methods were employed in catering to the public that were used in cities along the line.

The running of a Harvey restaurant was a business training, and after a year Mr. Dutton left the service to engage in business for himself at Leavenworth. He is now the financial man in a wholesale dry goods house in which he is largely interested in Kansas City.

If you should ask him where he spent the most profitable year in gaining a business education, he would tell you that it was out in the desert representing the Harvey interests under the Harvey discipline.

One of the great eastern railways went to Mr. Harvey some time ago, and made him a tempting offer to take charge of their dining car service. He took the matter under advice and after a few days declined the offer, giving as the only reason that he couldn't find the men who were competent to handle the business.

That seems like a queer proposition in these days when so many young men are complaining of lack of opportunity. The ability to run a restaurant with everything furnished under the direction of a man who understands the business, ought to be easy to find and develop, and yet this man, after long experience was unable to find this class of men.

Mr. Harvey's experience is being repeated every day in every line of business. From the small employer to the large corporations vacancies are constantly occurring, and men who are able to fill them and carry responsibility, are lacking.

The demand along this line is not for brilliant men or captains of industry, but for men who are enough above the average in ambition, honesty and faithfulness to step to the front and command attention.

There is an army of young men today in offices, stores, shops and factories who are doing routine work and doing it well and yet whose chances for advancement are not flattering, because ambition never prompts them to do more than they are paid for doing.

No word of complaint ever comes from the employer because there is no occasion, but when an emergency confronts him, and he wants a man above the average to step out and assume responsibility, he looks over his list of men and regrets that the vacancy must be filled from outside.

These conditions are more prevalent today than in former years for two or three reasons. The rapid progress of the age and the revolution constantly going on in the industrial world opens up a wide range of opportunities and creates demand for men in new positions. In the world of electricity and engineering there is a constant demand for young men of the class which Mr. Harvey was unable to find.

Education today has much to do with this defect, perhaps not the education of the school so much as the first few years spent in the more practical school of every day life, for education goes on long after the text book is thrown aside.

Society educates the young man and fills him with an ambition to imitate the millionaire, on $10 a week.
He must own a dress suit, attend the theatre, hire a carriage for every party and make a desperate effort to keep pace with the procession. These demands occupy so much of his time and so absorb his thoughts that his services are common place with no possible chance for advancement.

The saloon educates young men and the more expert they become the more they lessen opportunities for getting to the front. The business and industrial world look askance at the boy who frequents drinking places.

Organized labor educates a larger class of young men, perhaps, than any other department in the university of life, and it is to be regretted that a different policy is not adopted.

The boy who enters as an apprentice in the school of industrial life, or in many departments of commercial life, discovers early in his experience that his first allegiance is to the union. This thought is so impressed upon him that before he graduates as a full fledged workman he is ready to sacrifice loyalty to his employer, as well as his own best interests, to meet the behests of his union.

These conditions are deplorable and if young men would do a little sober thinking on their own account they would never consent to this sort of education.

What the world wants today is a more liberal display of independent young manhood. Boys who have the hardihood to say to society, "go on and leave me until I complete the foundation, for I propose to build a structure which I can inhabit clear down to the end of the road."

Boys who can say to the saloon,
"excuse me, I can't afford to take the chances."

Boys who have the independence of manhood to say to organized labor, "I am with you for the betterment of humanity but not for the stultifying of manhood. You offer nothing for individual advancement or personal merit. If I ever get to the front I must work out my own destiny."

This is the secret of success in every calling. Men stand or fall, not in groups, but alone, and the men who possess the ability to stand alone are always the men who win.

It takes a good man to run a Harvey restaurant, and it takes just as good a man to assume responsibility in any other department. Not great men but good, faithful, honest, toilers, working with a will to some purpose.
This is a great world, filled with opportunities and America is largely on the map.

The Noble patent medicine bill met the defeat which it so justly deserved. There was nothing to recommend and everything to condemn in the measure. If people want patient medicine let them have it. They won't become intoxicated and fatal results are rare.

The Central M. E. church will soon break ground for the new building to be known as the Cargill Memorial church. The plans provide for a modern up-to-date building, that will be an ornament to the city and a credit to the society.

The merry sound of the carpet beater is abroad in the land, and the man of the house who is not courting trouble spends most of his time at the lodge.

There are too many men who are attempting to support a wine appetite on a beer income.

If the legislature adjourns without passing a rate commission bill, what will happen to the chief executive?

It takes more than a helmet and uniform to make a policeman.

PRESS COMMENT.

Marquette Eagle-Star: The legislature is busy passing freak bills, again, when it attempts to restrict physicians as to their methods of making their profession known.

El Paso Herald: Paul Jones made a cardinal mistake in not having his name worked into his shirt when he was buried so there would be no mistake possible.

Cleveland Plaindealer: By Cape
Horn, the distance between New York and San Francisco is about 14,800 miles. The Panama Canal will reduce this to something less than 5,000.

Superior Telegram: It is said that "trade unionism" is at stake now in Chicago. But it isn't the first time—according to reports it manages to be at stake at least every thirty days
in that city.

Sheboygan Journal: Fon du Lac is excited because the St. Paul railroad is driving stakes near that city.
The truth is that some of the railroad officials have invented a new game of mumble peg.

Madison Journal: It might be well for the Bankers' association to choose its presidents from the country where speculation by bank officials is a subject of gossip soon enough to prevent damage.

Washington Post: "The Standard Oil Company has played continually with stacked cards and loaded dice," says Rev. Washington Gladden.
These preachers should be more careful about expressions which ordinary laymen can not understand.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Richard Le
Gallienne pronounces Nan Patterson
"pudgy and common looking." Miss Patterson may in time forgive Prosecutor Rand for his invectives; but Richard has committed the unpardonable offense.

Exchange: During the course of a recent lecture Rev. Dr. Anna Shaw stated that for a long time woman's stature has been increasing, while that of man has shown an opposite tendency, and she attributes the decrease of the men's stature to the excessive use of tobacco.

Rockford Register Gazette: Virginia Harned, wife of E. H. Southern, is indignant because an admirer sent her a diamond ring to wear on one of her toes while she is enacting the part of Tribby. Of course if Virginia has no use for the sparkler there is many a star who would like to receive it.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Serenely
indifferent to climatic changes and greatly daring, a colony of Finns is preparing to settle in Cuba. Finland has an alleged climate that is something like that of Alaska in a cold spell. It is a safe prediction that in about a year from now several hundred very sick Finns will be moving up to join their countrymen in Minnesota.

Chicago Record-Herald: If Mayor
Dunne does not immediately succeed in suppressing organized rioting and violence by the use of the police he should ask the governor to call out the National Guard. In so doing he will have the support of all law-abiding citizens, regardless to admitting that it is helpless without troops. If troops are necessary the sooner they are summoned the better.

Chicago Chronicle: Plunger Biglow's defense is foreshadowed in the circumstance that his personal friends have begun to announce that he has acted like a crazy man for several years. The defense is good, too, so far as it goes, because it may be conceded that any man who essays to "beat" the stock market with embezzled money is crazy to an extent. The trouble is that the law takes no account of this type of insanity. If it did insanity would become epidemic among people in fiduciary positions.

La Crosse Leader-Press: The present strikes are a repetition of the strongest argument against Chicago
as a site for manufacturing plants.
There are strikes elsewhere but they seldom are accompanied by scenes of hunger and murder as those always characteristic of any labor disturbance at Chicago at all prolonged.
Chicago is no longer a safe place for the investment of capital or for orderly laboring men. Every year makes that fact clearer. In the future it will be found, unless conditions change, greatly there will be little investment in new manufacturing enterprises in Chicago. Newly formed companies will locate elsewhere and companies now established there will get away whenever they can without too great expense.

Madison Democrat: An exchange observes: "Nan Patterson may never have killed Caesar Young with a bullet. Caesar Young may have drec-ted the shot that killed him. But Nan Patterson is morally guilty." Nonsense! This woman is not so guilty as the man. The latter was under no obligation to seek her out and bestow his money and his attentions upon her. It matters not what she is.
She may be a siren, and the most depraved of her kind, but if Caesar Young, a man of the world, a professional sport and gambler, fell under her wills it must be "confessed that he became a voluntary victim.
Although he is dead—dead in disgrace—there is no one to blame but himself; and one may feel the truth of his belief without cherishing any maudish sympathy for the frivolous show girl, the purchasable companion of his scandalous career.

AN ADDRESS BY REV. E. H. PENCE

OPENED THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION OF PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

J. G. Rexford Chronicled the Events of Half a Century—Banquet This Evening.

Fifty happy, active years of church life passed in review before the large assemblage at the First Presbyterian edifice last evening. Members of the congregation living at a distance began to arrive for the golden anniversary celebration during the afternoon and long before the program opened the large auditorium was comfortably filled. The first number was a pipe organ and piano duet played by Mrs. Clarence L. Clark and Mrs. W. T. Sherer. The doxology and invocation followed and Rev. W. F. Brown of Beloit, formerly pastor of the local church, offered a prayer. Mrs. J. G. Rexford sang a solo which was followed by the anniversary address, delivered by Rev. E. H. Pence of Detroit, Mich., pastor here from 1893 to 1900.

Lights and Shadows
Rev. Pence opened his address with a little picture of the scene in the mining camp at Georgetown, Colorado, on the day when the first letter arrived which placed him in communication with the congregation at Janesville, concluding this little introductory story with these words: "You called, we came. The acquaintance was but superficial at the outset; I believe that we furrowed the soil of each other's souls fairly deep ere the six and a half years thereafter, years that sufficed eternity, carrying us to our substance and records." He then turned, first to the shadows, and then to the lights of those years, dwelling long on the lives and characters of such men as Dr. Lyman J. Barrows, and John Dewitt Rexford, who were suddenly gone to be seen no more of men. Afterwards he spoke of the social life of the church and the Thursday night prayer meetings when "we were just our natural selves with the world all fetched along, and being our very most natural selves, we left each behind or left it over for Sunday." A certain "railroad social," a convention of over-matured dandies, incidents connected with the boys' brigade, and the coldly calculating body of men called trustees, were recalled in passing.

REV. E. H. PENCE

Men's Church Attendance
Once the speaker paused to consider the problem: "There are more women than men in the church," analyzing it to this conclusion—"Sure enough! but there are usually more men than there are women in the average saloon, but I never heard that fact used as anything, either to the saloon or men's credit. Take a census of the men in this city; only at long intervals will you find a man who will not confess that the church is practically an indispensable institution; that moral and unrelenting estate values will wholly collapse without it. Go farther, catch him alone when there is no other man around before whom he feels it necessary to be funny, and he will confess that he mentally believes the Gospel truths, though he lets his life so belie that mental belief. Well, if this is true, then the average woman is simply honest than the average man, and follows her inner sense of obligation to a thing from which she feels she secures so much from, and to which she owes so much for what she is, has, may hope for."

Six-Years a Composite
In the course of his reminiscences he offered a tribute to Mrs. Agnes B. Hume and concluded with this sentiment: "To me, none are gone from this band in these five years—none. All are still here; mine is the happiness that does not realize that some are absent; the olden lights are all turned on. The six years are all a composite, blended into the moment of my thought of you. Thank God—May I thank Him? with great selfishness; thank God, it is so. With a heart all of sympathy for you, you will not blame me for, nor rob me, and takes away the pang—which will not go from you—in the thought that any one of all I knew in those six years is anywhere but just here."

History of Fifty Years
J. G. Rexford gave a very interesting history of the fifty years relating how in 1850 the Presbyterian mission board had visited Janesville for the purpose of establishing a church and how in 1855 the first Presbyterian service was held with twelve persons present in the little stone academy. On May 5 of that year the church was organized and three of the first members survive. Janesville at that time was an incorporated city with 7,000 and the Methodist, Episcopal, Roman Catholic, Baptist, and Primitive Methodist sects were represented. The first building was little frame chapel on the site where the present edifice whose cornerstone was laid June 12, 1891, now stands. Contributions during the fifty years had aggregated over $150,000 and 1,104 persons had been entered on the roll. Over 650 of these had been received on profession of faith, the present number of communicants totaling 465. The pastors who had been in charge were: Oliver Brunson, 1855-59; Geo. C. Heckman, 1859-62; Mr. Carpenter, 1862-67; Chas. L. Thompson, 1867-77; David G. Bradford, 1877-89; F. C. Kirkwood, 1889-93; Jos. W. Sanderson, 1893-98; W. F. Brown, 1898-99; E. H. Pence, 1899-00; J. T. Henderson, 1900 to the present time.

Program Tonight
Reminiscences by Rev. William Brown of Beloit and Rev. Joseph Sanderson of Beaver Dam and the reading of twenty-five letters of greeting by Rev. J. T. Henderson will be features of this evening's program. There will be a banquet at 6:30 p. m. The meeting this afternoon was to open with a reception at four, followed by the reading of historical papers, talks on the Sunday school by I. F. Wortendyke, the Women's Missionary society by Miss Elizabeth Patterson, the Ladies' Aid society by Mrs. William Blair, and the Christian Endeavor by Miss Louise Hanson.

"YANKEE CONSUL" NOW A BENEDICT

Raymond Hitchcock Married Flora Zabelle, Leading Lady, in St. Louis, Yesterday.

Raymond Hitchcock, comedian of "The Yankee Consul" company, which appeared in Janesville on April 10, and Miss Flora Zabelle, who had the part of "Bonita," the charming leading woman in the same production, surprised their associates in St. Louis yesterday by becoming man and wife. Rev. Dr. M. M. Mangasarian of Chicago, father of the bride, performed the ceremony. The wedding was not without a tinge of romance, for, though Mr. Hitchcock and Miss Zabelle had been engaged for some time, it was one of the stipulations of their contract that they remain single during the theatrical season. Dr. Mangasarian arrived unexpectedly in St. Louis to bid farewell to his daughter before departing on a tour of Europe. It occurred to Mr. Hitchcock that it was a most fitting time for the marriage ceremony, and, as the bride-to-be did not object, he hid himself to the city hall to secure a marriage license, while Miss Zabelle hustled about to procure a bridesmaid. When Mr. Hitchcock returned with the license, Miss Sally McNeil, also a member of the company, was waiting to take her part in the ceremony in the parlor of the Planters' hotel. Dr. Mangasarian then departed for New York to board his steamer. Mr. Hitchcock telephoned Manager Clark, who did not seem particularly pleased at the news, but it was too late, and he was obliged to make the best of the situation. After the show last night the entire company were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hitchcock at the wedding feast at the Planters' hotel. The bridal tour will consist of the regular trip with the company to New York.

Racial Degeneration.

The British Army and Navy Gazette asks: "Is it not a sign of racial degeneration when our soldiers feel pride in wearing upon their breasts, in the recognized place for war decorations, medals gained through attending processions?"

Oyster Shell Window Panes.
In Mailla most of the houses and offices have tiny window panes made of translucent oyster shell instead of glass.

Nuts an Ideal Food.

Nuts being a complete substitute for animal food, if it were impossible to procure fish, flesh or fowl in this, "the greatest of meat-eating nations," there would be no starvation, no loss of nerve or strength of muscle, for nuts would supply the deficiencies in diet, even to milk, cream and butter. —American Nut Journal.

SOCIETY.

Miss Mae Atwood was united in marriage to Don Holloway of Chicago this afternoon at half-past three o'clock at Christ church, Rev. A. H. Barrington pronouncing the ceremony. The happy couple were attended by Miss Abigail Atwood, a sister of the bride, and Roy Holloway, a brother of the groom. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Atwood and a very popular young lady in social circles of the city. Mr. Holloway is employed by the Chicago Telephone company and is at the head of the testing division of the engineering department. Both are graduates of the Janesville high school of the class of 1899 and the groom completed a course of mechanical engineering at the Wisconsin university, where he made special preparation for his present high position. There were many guests at the wedding and scores of friends wish Mr. and Mrs. Holloway success and happiness. They left immediately after the ceremony for Chicago from where they will go to Lombard, about twenty miles distant, and make their future home.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Blow last evening were celebrated the birthday anniversaries of Mr. Blow, Mrs. T. L. Mason, and Miss Anna Taylor. The entertainment was in the nature of a surprise and was planned by Mrs. Blow, M. C. Peterson, and T. L. Mason. The evening was devoted to the game of elench and "fudge" and a tempting luncheon was served at the conclusion of the playing. Before departing for their homes the guests presented a handsome token to each of the trio whose birthday anniversaries occur on the same date.

On Thursday afternoon the members of the O. E. S. Study class held a social and banquet at the home of Mrs. W. H. Merritt. Toasts were given as follows:

"Our Members," a poem by Mrs. John Nicholson.
"Looking Backward," Mrs. H. L. McNamara.

"Our Possibilities," Mrs. P. L. Munger.
"Our Motto," Mrs. E. O. Kimberley.
Class Song, trio—Mrs. Harry Garbutt, Mrs. Ben Carle, Mrs. John Stevens.

Miss Anna Brummond was pleasantly surprised at the pleasant country home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brummond, last evening by twenty friends who came with all of the paraphernalia for a kitchen shower. Dancing and games were enjoyed until a late hour and the entertainment was concluded with the serving of a delicious supper.

Wednesday evening thirty-five friends surprised Mr. and Mrs. John H. Carney at their home east of the city. Vocal and instrumental music was rendered and an enjoyable evening spent at dancing. Refreshments were served at midnight, after which the guests departed for their homes, having passed a most pleasant evening.

The attendance at the annual banquet and dance of the G. U. G. Bowler City Verein was large and a pleasant evening was spent. The party was held in the West Side Odd Fellows hall.

Mrs. W. D. Merritt was called to Waterloo, Iowa, last evening by a telegram announcing the serious illness of her father.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lawton of Albion are visiting Mrs. James Angell at 56 Prairie avenue.

Miss Myrtle Malpress of Edgerton is the guest of the Misses Gardner, 13 Million avenue.

Harry Atwood is home from Minneapolis, Minn., to attend the Atwood-Holloway wedding.

Miss Harriet Decker is home from Chicago to spend Sunday.

CRIMSON STOCKINGS VS. BELOIT EAGLES

Local Baseball Nine Go to the Lin City Tomorrow to Meet Former Rivals.

Tomorrow afternoon the Red Sox baseball team of this city will play their first regular game of the 1905 season in Beloit with the Eagles of that city. Manager Turner of the Line city organization was in Janesville last evening and completed the arrangements for the contest. Both nines have been strengthened since they met last year and the outcome cannot be predicted, though it seems that the local team has an excellent show for the honors of the day. Hall at catch and Clarke in the box will form the battery for the crimson Stockings and Swanson and Burns the Beloit Eagle battery.

FIRE WAS STARTED BY INCENDIARIES

Burning of Grange Hall Last Evening Was the Work of Malice—Loss $1,800.

At two o'clock this morning the town of Janesville grange hall located near the county farm was set afire by incendiaries and burned to the ground. The flame was started on the northwest corner of the building, kerosene or some similar inflammable substance being thrown on the timbers. When first observed that portion of the building was wrapped in a sheet of flame several yards high. When built many years ago the hall cost $600 but several hundred more have been expended in improvements since that time and the total loss is now estimated at $1,800 or more. There was no insurance. No clue to the identity of the perpetrators of the outrage has been found.

Notice to Beet-Growers

The planting season is now on and we wish again to call your attention to the matter of the land preparation and the planting. The ground should be worked until it is as near garden shape as possible, working it down with harrow, roller and plank drag until it is perfectly level and free from clods. Use only a regular beet drill or a Planet Jr. hand drill in the planting. Space the rows 18 or 20 inches apart. Plant the full 20 pounds of seed per acre and have the machine set so that the seed is planted only about 1/2 of an inch deep. Plant the seed the same day that your land has received its last preparation, while the moisture is close to the surface. When the beets come up so that you can follow the rows give them the first cultivation. Use a regular beet cultivator or the small drag tooth cultivator, set it to go as close to the rows as possible without covering the plants and run it no deeper than 2 inches. Space the beets with a 6 or 7 inch hoe just as soon as the stand is there, and thin down the bunches left to one single plant, as soon as the beets are three inches high. You should have left, after thinning, a single plant every 8 to 10 inches in the row. Cultivate the field often and use the hoe when necessary thereafter, as on the cleanliness of your field depends the success of the crop.

When the beets have reached such a growth that the leaves completely cover the rows, the cultivation should stop. Don't hesitate in asking us for advice. We employ experts in beet culture whose duty it is to assist you in every way.

THE FAIR

MRS. CAROLINE FALTER SUCCUMBED LAST NIGHT

Has Made Her Home in Janesville for Forty-Five Years—End Came Peacefully.

Mrs. Caroline Falter, widow of the late John Falter, passed quietly away at the Palmer Memorial hospital last night shortly before the twelve o'clock hour. Deceased has been ill for several months and was confined to the hospital for the past week. She has made this city her home for forty-five years and was well-known and highly respected among a host of friends. There are left to mourn her death five children, three daughters and two sons. They are Mrs. William Koch, Mrs. Otto Kronitz, Miss Emma Falter, John H. and Edward S. Falter. She also leaves two brothers, Henry and Herman Gaulke of Janesville, and one sister, Mrs. Millie Reed of Carbonate, Kansas. The funeral will be from St. Mary's church Monday morning at 9:15 o'clock, leaving the home on South Franklin street at nine.

Mrs. Catherine Inman

Mrs. Catherine Inman, wife of Edward Inman, died at 8:30 this morning at her residence, 257 Prospect avenue, after a long sickness. She was the mother of four children, all of whom survive her and are as follows: Mrs. Alice Dean of Ladysmith, Wisconsin; Mrs. A. E. Rich, Mrs. O. V. Hanthorn and Ralph Inman, all of Janesville. Mrs. Inman was pre-eminently a home-maker. The quiet beauty of her life and faith, her devotion to duty and to her family, and her practical good sense made her home cheerful and delightful. Her devotion to her family ever riveted its members to the hearthstone. She was a good wife, a loving mother, and a lifelong member of the Methodist church. Her kindly expression, her words of cheer, will not soon be forgotten by those who knew her. The funeral will be held from the residence Monday afternoon at 2:30 and will be private.

Mr. Decker.

Word was received in the city yesterday announcing the death of Miss Genevieve Decker's father in Hinsdale, Ill., on Monday. Miss Decker, who was formerly an instructor in the high school here, was with her mother in California at the time of Mr. Decker's demise but word was immediately sent them and they were present at the funeral service over the remains held in Battle Creek, Mich., today. The many friends of Miss Decker in this city will be greatly pained to learn of her bereavement.

Mrs. S. T. Whitcomb

Thursday evening the remains of the late Mrs. S. T. Whitcomb, whose demise occurred in Chicago Monday, were brought to Janesville and taken immediately to Oak Hill cemetery for burial. A. J. and George Thompson of Pennsylvania, brothers of the deceased, and C. B. Antisdel of Chicago accompanied the body. The pallbearers were S. B. Smith, J. A. Whiffen, C. F. Yates, and Judge B. P. Dunwiddie.

John Dumagan

All that is mortal of the late John Dumagan was committed to the final resting place in Mount Olivet cemetery this morning, funeral services being held at ten o'clock from St. Mary's church. Rev. James McGinnity was the officiating clergyman and the pallbearers were James Arthur, Patrick Hayes, John Fanning, James Bernard, William Bernard and Michael Connors.

Mrs. W. S. Pember

Funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. W. S. Pember will be held from the home in Johnston Center tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock.

The Witch of Cragenstone

Author of "In Love and Truth"

He paused for a moment to emphasize his words, then continued with a great seriousness, shaking his head in the manner of one who had abandoned all hope. "With prayer and protestations my good mother and I have urged this woman to change her ways, to destroy the evil cross that is but a witch mark invented by the devil for his purposes, one touch of which will bring a man to fell disaster. Men and brothers," he cried, "she would not hear us! She coldly turned us from her door and then in her wickedness set our sheep a-dying; but, being our kind woman, we bore all patiently and said naught. Now, my judgment tells me that too much harm hath been done already. Here before you all I repudiate this woman. I renounce kinship to her!"

The crowd, now having assumed much larger proportions, took up the cry of late and bitterness. "Good man! Good man Josiah! He doth renounce his cousin!" one cried. "Down, down with the woman who weareth Satan's cross!" said another. "We ha' borne too much already!" "Hanging is the only way to put an end on it," cried old Adam tearfully, wiping his eyes.

"Witchcraft is the very blackest crime against God, the saints and the people!" proclaimed Josiah Taunston dramatically. "Such wickedness cannot be choked out. Burning—burning at the stake—is the punishment our clergy and elders have ever meted out as of sufficient suffering to expiate this heinous crime."

Then, seeing his listeners were roused to an unusual height of fury, he cried in a louder voice: "My men, to the town house! Call the council for a meeting! We must act ere our own souls, caught in the talons of the devil's claws, are rendered incapable to invoke God's vengeance."

Turning his horse's head, he led the way, followed by an excited throng of angry men.

In the meantime Mistress Taunston, whose reputation for piety and her well known willingness to offer spiritual consolation to the afflicted brought her to many bedside of both sick and dying, had been at the cabin of the Widow Dawson, and as the sun was slowly sinking down below the hills she came through the forest on her way home. Hearing the sounds of approaching footsteps, she raised her head and saw approaching Margaret's woman Elsiebeth, who when she had advanced a few steps paused and, glancing about in all directions, called in shrill tones the little dog Biddy, that had evidently strayed away. It was Margaret's aunt coming toward her Elsiebeth gave no sign of it. Without ever having had an interchange of hard words there was a deep feeling of hatred lying in the hearts of these two women for each other, and, although on occasions they had met with civil greetings, an undercurrent spirit of enmity between them was apparent and had grown lately into such proportions that at their last meeting the women had passed without recognition.

So today, with her head held high and a forbidding expression on her grim countenance, Mistress Taunston approached. The path at that point was rocky and narrow, so that in order to proceed one of them had to stand dangerously near the edge to let the other pass. Elsiebeth, walking slowly, continued to look as if she saw no person in her way and called the lost dog's name with a great show of anxiety. Bristling with defiance and wearing her most scornful bearing, the Puritan woman came on until, reaching Elsiebeth, who still refused to see her, she paused and, drawing her scant skirt of gray homespun very close about her, with an air cutted quickly. Off and many times he bath so expressed himself, being a godly man and pious, so hope not for his interference. Now it is my turn to warn thee." She raised a finger and pointed it at Elsiebeth solemnly. "Before you run just fading from our sight doth fall again tomorrow even, thou and thy fledgeling had better begone." Her manner betrayed such conviction and evil portent that Elsiebeth's heart sank within her, although her face retained its expression of indifference and defiance. She drew aside to let the other pass, saying coldly: "Take heed how thou dost persecute Margaret Mayland further, and rely not too strongly on thy delusion of having the king's favor. That is all I have to say to thee."

"Make way, woman!"

Then she walked on calmly, calling in shrill tones to the straying dog.

CHAPTER XIX.

HETTY TAUNSTON, pale faced and wearing an air of great despondency, leaned over the gate idly. She was lonely, and an undimmed feeling of fear was upon her. Some happening of more than usual interest had drawn the men from the farm earlier tonight, and, having laid a cold supper on the table for her mother and Josiah, she hung about the doorway, eagerly awaiting the advent of the first comer to relieve the monotony of the lonely hour and bring her news of what was happening. Soon the sound of horses' hoofs was heard.

"Ah!" she breathed a sigh of relief—"Josiah home at last!" The horse and rider approaching near, Hetty discovered the latter to be none other than her former friend and lover, Simon Kempster, who since their final understanding in the dairy had met her with cool indifference, doffing his cap and passing by in silence. At the unexpected sight of him Hetty's heart gave a bound, and the blood rushed to her face. Surely, she thought, this sad night when she was so lonely he would pause for the evening chat to which they had been accustomed for so many months. Oh, why had she not put the pink blossom in her hair that he admired so much! Hetty was frightened, apprehensive. She wished he would stop, if only for one short moment, and although the young woman had other ideas for a husband, she had admitted to herself more than once of late that for a common everyday friend Simon did very well, that she missed him and that her heart was a little sore at his treatment of her since she refused to marry him. Kempster reached the gateway.

"A greeting, Simon," The soft, fluttering voice fell on Kempster's ears strangely. He felt a tugging sensation in his breast, but, controlling himself by a strong effort, regarded the little smiling, enticing face coldly.

"A good even, mistress," he said, with quiet civility. Then he rode on, possibly a trifle faster, without even a backward glance.

For a moment she stood speechless with surprise; then as an understanding of his meaning came to her she drew a sharp breath and tossed her head angrily.

"Now I will marry my French courier when he doth come!" she exclaimed hotly. "A common farming man need not take such a high hand with me. He hung so much about me in the latter months and I was ever so friendly with him that I thought 'twas only decent to offer him a greeting. But," with a shrug of her shoulders, "I'll ha' done with him now, and—mayhap—when I'm gone from him to France forever"—with a little tremble in her voice—"he'll regret his cold looks an' ugly manners."

Pointing her lips, she took a seat upon the bench at the door and soon grew so absorbed in her plans to wreak vengeance on poor Kempster that she did not hear the firm, quiet step of her mother nor was she conscious of her approach until the harsh voice fell sharply on her ears.

"Art pining again, foolish lass? Canst find naught to do but sit and think thy silly thoughts?" she asked sternly. "Where are the tallow dips, that they are not lighted? Am I, that am weary with a day of prayerful toil, to cross my threshold into a darkened house? Once thou wert of some use and handy at thy work, but of late, prithee, 'tis naught but dreams and sighs! And thy pale face and absent mind doth fairly madden me."

Hetty, who had risen at the first words, now hastily entered the house, followed by her mother, still scolding. She lighted the candles and hung the kettle on the hob, saying as she did so: "Forgive me, mother. My thoughts were but of our cousin Margaret, whom I met an hour since walking on the highway. She stopped to have speech with me; but, remembering thy strict injunctions not to speak to her, I turned my face and passed by hurriedly. Once I paused to glance backward, and she was still standing where I had met her, looking after me with such a sad, surprised and grieved expression on her fair face that tears sprang to mine eyes, and I ran hastily toward home lest I might be tempted to disobey thee and go to my cousin."

"Thou passed her on the road and she looked long at thee with her evil eyes?" cried the dame in great consternation. "No wonder I find thee with pale face and pining. Ah, woe is me! What trouble more will come upon this house?"

"What meanest thou, mother?" Hetty regarded her mother apprehensively. "I mean, Henrietta Taunston, that thy cousin is a witch, a woman in conspiracy with the devil to invoke harm to God loving people, and that she hath been proclaimed so to be by the people," the woman replied, with a sternness that did not quite cover up a certain glinting in her manner. "To thy knees, girl, and pray for God's good influence to overcome the evil to which thou hast been exposed today."

Englishman Puts Up Plucky Fight, and Admits Opponent Is Superior.

San Francisco, Cal., May 6.—James E. Britt of California became champion lightweight of the world Friday night when he knocked out Jabez White of England at the close of a magnificent twenty-round battle.

With just twenty seconds to go, Britt hooked the Englishman with a left on the jaw and the foreigner went to the mat, where he lay flat on his back for eight seconds. He staggered to his feet, but was powerless to defend himself and Britt swung right and left on his jaw. Referee Smith, to save the plucky Englishman from needless punishment, stopped the contest, although White was still on his feet leaning up against the ropes in a helpless condition.

White was carried to his corner and in a few minutes revived sufficiently to make a little speech in which he said:

"I fought the best I knew how. I received fair play, but Britt is evidently the better man."

WILL MARRY GOTHAM BANKER

Fortune and Fate Smile Kindly on Miss Iola Powell of Peoria.

Peoria, Ill., May 6.—Fortune and fate have smiled kindly upon a fair Peoria girl whose engagement is announced to a prominent banker of New York city. Next month the groom will take the young woman and her parents to Europe and the wedding will take place in Paris. Two years ago Miss Iola Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Powell, poor but respected residents of this city, left for New York city to study music. After several months' study Miss Powell secured a position in a prominent church as soloist. Robert H. Mainzer was one of the attendants at the church and became interested in the charming singer. A friendship soon ripened into love. Miss Powell has been warmly received by the wealthy New York family. The groom is junior member of the firm of Holcomb & Mainzer, bankers, of Nassau street, and inherited $8,000,000 at the death of his father.

"Baker Dies Suddenly."

Rochester, N. Y., May 6.—P. F. Adams, who was on a tour of inspection of the Orient railroad in Mexico, with Arthur Stillwell and a party of capitalists, died of heart disease on the special train.

How Is Your Heart?

Is your pulse weak, too slow, too fast, or does it skip a beat? Do you have shortness of breath, weak or hungry spells, fainting, smothering or choking spells, palpitation, fluttering, pains around the heart, in side and shoulder; or hurt when lying on left side?

If you have any of these symptoms your heart is weak or diseased, and cannot get better without assistance.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure strengthens weak hearts, and rarely ever fails to cure heart disease. Try it, and see how quickly you will find relief.

"About January 1st, 1902, I took down with weakness and drowsiness, and gradually grew worse. I was told by my family physician that my case was hopeless. My neighbors and family had given me up to die. My limbs and body were swollen, one-third larger than normal size, and water had collected around my heart. For at least three months I had to sit propped up in bed to keep from smothering. I sent for five bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and by the time I had taken them all I was entirely cured. I feel better than I have for twenty years, and I am able to do any kind of work on my farm. My attending physician told me that if it hadn't been for Dr. Miles' Heart Cure I would now be in my grave."

CZAR'S PROMISE IS MADE BEFORE NEW ZEMESTOV

People's Congress Meets At Moscow To Discuss The Latest Project—People Will Assist.

Moscow, May 6.—The zemstvo congress met here Friday to discuss the project for the popular assembly contemplated by the czar's rescript of March 3. The congress is composed of 132 delegates from all the zemstvos throughout Russia. The proposed assembly under discussion contemplates, first, a house of popular representatives elected directly on the basis of universal manhood suffrage, and, second, "a house of zemstvos," or senate, elected by indirect choice, like the American senate, members being chosen by organs of local self-government—that is, provincial zemstvos and municipal assemblies, the two houses to be co-ordinate.

The franchise for the house of representatives appertains to all males 21 years old except soldiers, police and criminals, on the basis of either residence or tax paying in the district.

Hold Office Three Years.

There is to be a triennial term for members of the popular house, and senators are to be chosen for the same term as the bodies electing them. Vacancies in both houses will be filled by new elections. Members are not bound to follow the instructions of constituents.

Under the plan for the election of members of the popular house the empire will be divided into districts of a population of 150,000 to 200,000.

Attorneys for Banker Say List Will Never Be Completed.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 6.—There will be no amended schedule to the assets and liabilities of ex-Banker Frank G. Bigelow, who filed a petition in bankruptcy. The attorneys for the former banker stated that new items were coming in daily and they did not believe a complete schedule would ever be known. The preliminary examination of Henry G. Goll, the former assistant cashier of the First National bank, was continued for ten days. United States Commissioner Bloodgood fixed bail pending the examination at $15,000.

Her Life A Burden

Cruel Persecution of a Pretty Welsh Girl Led to Her Death.

She Was Attacked and Stabbed With a Knife—Later She Was Bound In Her Home. A Strange Case.

Consumption, developed as the direct result of cruel, persistent and mysterious persecution, has ended the life of a pretty Welsh girl named Edith Davies at the age of twenty-four, says a correspondent writing from Swansea.

A MAN AND WOMAN SPRING AT HER.

Wales. The story of the past two years of her life reads like the pages of some ultra sensational novel. Up to two or three years ago there was no happier girl in the village. Then, returning home late one evening, she was waylaid by an unknown man and stabbed with a knife. A Swansea blacksmith was arrested a few days later, but he proved an alibi and was released. Miss Davies recovered from her injuries, but her nervous system was shaken. The continual arrival of anonymous letters which threatened her life made her existence a misery. Each letter, which was in printed characters, was handed to the police, who kept diligent watch. Later in the same year just as Miss Davies was going into her home, which was that evening empty, a man and woman, supposed to have been disguised, spring at her, took her into her home, gagged her and bound her to a table. Having done this, they deftly ransacked drawers and cupboards until they found her birth certificate. This they carried away, leaving all else behind. Some time later in the evening the unfortunate girl was found in a state of complete collapse bound as the mysterious marauders had left her. The continual strain on her mind was such that she sickened and went into consumption.

Edith Davies had relatives in the Mumbles. Her parents keep a little restaurant frequented mostly by trippers. The Mumbles is only a little place, and everybody knows everybody else, and yet when the man and woman left the house on the occasion of the last outrage they vanished as completely as though the earth had swallowed them. Unfortunately the victim was too frightened to give anything like a description of her assailants.

Not the least skillful work of the poor girl's persecutors was the manner in which the letters were penned. All were printed in a style suggestive of the work of a schoolboy's handwriting, and thus the chances of identification were reduced to a minimum. The stealing of the birth certificate was an act which suggested that the subject of the outrages might have been the daughter of some people high in position who were anxious to prevent any possible claim on them in the future, and who, with this object in view, desired to destroy possible evidence of identification, but the facts of Miss Davies' parentage did not in any degree lead themselves to any such construction. Another remarkable fact was that, though the first outrage, when Miss Davies was stabbed, was an undoubted attempt to take her life, a threat which was contained in several of the anonymous letters, the perpetrators of the outrage did not, when at length they had their victim in their power, attempt to injure her. The general feeling at the Mumbles was and still is that she was the victim of a conspiracy in which three or four persons were concerned, but the why and wherefore have been shrouded in mystery, and the problem seems no nearer solution than it was a couple of years ago.

Two Good Points.

The man who lets the other fellow do all of the heated talking always gets the best of the argument, it is said. He also occasionally escapes a good beating.—Detroit Tribune.

Increased Longevity of Women.

CARICATURE SKETCH OF CONGRESSMAN GROSVENOR

Inconsistent Man!

When a girl of 2, her father is pleased when she goes into his pockets when he comes home nights; when she is 10, he is irritated, and when she is 30 he gets mad.—Athenaeum Globe.

Same Old Question.

A man who went to church in Philadelphia met the minister's daughter there and now he is married to her. And still the question is asked, Why do so few men go to church?—Buffalo News.

ALL SORTS.

As a man thinketh before breakfast, so is he.

Most single women say they would not marry the best man in the world, and most married women know they didn't.

To the coming young man graduate: The world may yet be conquered, but it cannot be talked into submission.

Mother Nature is the only woman who never changes styles. Her apple blossoms are of the same old shade and pattern.

When we see all the foolish things in show windows we are tempted to grow sarcastic until we reflect that men make those things.

A great genius has arisen. He has written a light opera love song which does not contain the line: "Your eyes are as true as the stars above."

Now that our schools are teaching girls to drive nails and boys to sew on buttons there is at least hope that the households of the future may be peaceful.

When a woman finds that three boxes of ten cent cigars cost as much as a spring bonnet she begins to think her husband's health is being affected by the tobacco.

FIGS AND THISTLES.

The devil never really hates us until we begin to love our enemies.

Thoughtfulness doubles the value of a gift and often halves its cost.

Christ's yoke is built for two, and so becomes a bond for him and you.

Angels' songs last longest to men who are most anxious to repeat them to others.

Men who serve God to escape hell would serve any devil who promised them heaven.

The great thing is not so much to get people into the church as to get Christ into the people.

A Definition.

"What does the word 'aroma' mean?" was recently asked by a teacher. Only one hand went up. Its owner thus explained: "When you cook an onion in the kitchen the aroma is what you get in the parlor."

Too Much Poison.

A woman in Sydney, Australia, thinking to make a sure thing of it, injected into her veins three poisons—atropine, morphine and strychnine. The drugs counteracted one another and her attempt at suicide was not a success.

The Cares That Kill.

Our failures do not keep us down. We rise above them and forget. We turn from little troubles, too. And wonder why they made us fret. But still we let ourselves be bowed. Still after mourning long we fall. The foolish, blinded victims of The cares that never came at all.

Perfect Teeth of Tibetans.

It is said that the Tibetans possess the most perfect teeth in the world, although there is not a single tooth-brush in the whole country, and no form of cleansing the teeth is ever practiced.

Display of Merchandise.

An English court has decided that a person has no right to place goods in front of his premises, although they may be in his own private property, if they are likely to be dangerous to those who use the street.
